FOREWORD

Index herbariorum: southern African supplement is a welcome addition to the series on national and regional herbaria being published today as complements to Index Herbariorum, edition 8. The success of the Southern African supplement is due in large part to the energy of Gideon Smith and Christopher Willis, editors, who personally visited the herbaria listed in this publication between July 1996 and June 1997. Data on herbaria and their associated staff members have better accuracy and are more complete when gathered and published by those personally familiar with the herbaria.

The Southern African supplement is a product of the Southern African Botanical Diversity Network (SABONET), a programme aimed at strengthening the level of botanical expertise, expanding and improving herbarium collections, and fostering closer collaborative links among botanists in the subcontinent (Angola, Botswana, Lesotho, Malawi, Mozambique, Namibia, South Africa, Swaziland, Zambia and Zimbabwe). This useful compilation, which is presented in an innovative manner by the use of custom-made icons to denote various subheadings under each herbarium, goes a step further by fostering communication about herbaria in the worldwide scientific community.

Congratulations to the editors of the Southern African supplement for their excellent presentation on the herbaria of southern Africa, which in turn will make edition 9 of Index Herbariorum a more valuable international resource.

INTRODUCTION

Southern Africa is host to two floral kingdoms, Capensis and Paleotropical, and more than one tenth of the known plant species of the world. With this richness comes a great responsibility to manage and sustainably use it for the benefit of all the people of the subregion. To further enhance the human resource capacity and infrastructure available in the region and to rise to the challenges presented by national and international environmental initiatives such as the Convention on Biological Diversity, the Southern African Botanical Diversity Network (SABONET) Programme was initiated more than seven years ago (Huntley 1996), but it became functional only in March 1996. The main objective of SABONET, cofunded by the Global Environment Facility (GEF)/United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID)/World Conservation Union-Regional Office for southern Africa (IUCN-ROSA), is to develop a strong core of professional botanists, taxonomists, horticulturists and plant diversity specialists within the ten countries of southern Africa (Angola, Botswana, Lesotho, Malawi, Mozambique, Namibia, South Africa, Swaziland, Zambia and Zimbabwe) competent to inventory, monitor, evaluate and conserve the botanical diversity of the region in the face of specific development challenges, and to respond to the technical and scientific needs of the Convention on Biological Diversity. Amongst the various capacity building initiatives associated with the project are training courses, workshops and collaborative collecting expeditions in undercollected areas of the region. The project produces a newsletter, SABONET News, as well as a series of occasional publications, the Southern African Botanical Diversity Network (SABONET) Report Series, of which this publication is part.

The facilitation of communication amongst environmentalists in general and botanists in particular in the southern African subregion is one of the explicitly stated objectives of the SABONET programme. Following a period during which communication was at best rather difficult or at worst nonexistent, it is now easy for plant scientists to travel across political boundaries and participate in mutually beneficial projects. However, as a result of a period of comparative isolation, botanists from southern Africa are often at a loss as to whom they should contact for information about a particular subject or who the experts are on a specific group of plants. It is hoped that this book will go a long way towards filling this void.

This publication follows the general layout of the well-known eighth edition of the Index herbariorum (Holmgren, Holmgren & Barnett 1990), which was published under the auspices of the International Association for Plant Taxonomy in its Regnum Vegetabile series by the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx, New York. However, this book is not intended to compete with, or replace, the more comprehensive work of Holmgren et al. (1990). It rather provides an update of information for selected southern African herbaria. A similar project with a much broader scope covering a larger selection of subcontinental herbaria, particularly in South Africa, is being carried out under the auspices of the Southern African Herbarium Working Group (SAHWG), a committee of the South African Association of Botanists (SAAB). It is hoped that the latter project would also culminate in a publication in due course.

The herbaria included in this book are those that the editors visited between July 1996 and June 1997 during a series of country trips under the SABONET programme, and are by no means a comprehensive listing of all the southern African herbaria. Because of time constraints it was often not possible to visit herbaria in remote areas, such as the Forest Research Herbarium (NDO) in Kitwe, Zambia, and the Chase Herbarium (UMT) in Mutare, Zimbabwe. In the case of South Africa, only the three herbaria of the National Botanical Institute, implementing agency of the SABONET programme, are included.

How to use the book

Icons and maps

Extensive use has been made of custom-made icons to denote the various subheadings under each herbarium. A full explanation of each icon is provided on page 3. A map indicating the geographical position of each herbarium, with the associated herbarium abbreviation, has been included under each herbarium. A solid dot on a map indicates the position of a herbarium within the country, whilst an open circle either indicates that a herbarium no longer exists, or that it has been transferred to, or incorporated into, another herbarium collection. An arrow indicates the direction of movement of the herbarium collection.

Appendices

Access to the information listed in this publication is facilitated through several indices which closely follow those listed in Index herbariorum (Holmgren et al. 1990) and the Plant specialists index (Holmgren & Holmgren 1992). Appendix I provides comparative data on the size and age of herbaria surveyed, based on the foundation date and estimated number of herbarium specimens in each herbarium. Other appendices are the Index to herbarium abbreviations sorted separately by city and country, Index to important collections, Index to herbarium abbreviations, Index to staff, Taxonomic index, Geographic index, Subject index and Index to scientific names.

In the Index to herbarium abbreviations, acronyms for all herbaria cited in the Index herbariorum: southern African supplement are listed alphabetically, with postal addresses. The Index to staff provides an alphabetical list of staff (followed by herbarium abbreviation) working at or associated with the herbaria surveyed. This index includes volunteer staff and staff working in associated botanical gardens. The Taxonomic index is based on the interests and/or specialisations of the staff working in the various regional herbaria. The arrangement of plant groups, families and genera listed in the Taxonomic index follows Meyer, Mössmer & Smith (1997). In larger groups, families are arranged alphabetically, with genera listed alphabetically under their respective families. Within taxonomic categories, staff are arranged alphabetically, and herbarium abbreviation and country are given in brackets after the person's name. The Geographic index is based solely on interests indicated by staff working in the various herbaria, and does not include all staff working in a particular region or country. The Subject index is based on subjects cited by staff of the various herbaria. As in other indices, staff active in the various subject fields appear in alphabetical order, followed by herbarium abbreviation and country. In the Index to scientific names, all scientific names recorded under the various herbaria are listed in alphabetical sequence, followed by the relevant page numbers.

Acknowledgements

We would like to extend our sincere thanks to all the curators and staff of the regional herbaria surveyed for their cooperation in gathering the herbarium information and photographic material. Without their willing assistance, this publication would not have been possible. Special thanks to Rina Smit for assisting with the compilation, typing and indexing of the data, Adela Romanowski for developing and printing the photographs, and Emsie du Plessis for proofreading the publication. The authors are also most grateful to the SABONET Steering Committee and the international donors, GEF/UNDP and USAID/IUCN-ROSA, for the unique opportunity to visit the various regional herbaria as part of the SABONET programme.

This publication was made possible through support provided by the GEF through the UNDP and by the Regional Centre for southern Africa, Gaborone, Botswana, US Agency for International Development (Plot no. 14818 Lebatlane Road, Gaborone West, Extension 6, Gaborone), under the terms of Grant No. 690-0283-A-00-5950. The opinions expressed herein are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the views of either the US Agency for International Development, the World Conservation Union, or the GEF/UNDP.
